Forensic Graphologist Analyzes Previous Post

Tue, 2010-11-02 11:06 — Robin Olson

One thing I really love about writing this Blog is all the great people I get to meet. Some are pen pals from across “the pond” and others I've had the pleasure of meeting in person. These folks have a varied background. Some times their jobs flat out surprise me and leave me in awe.

While I am sworn to secrecy over this person's identity, I can tell you she is a Forensic Graphologist, otherwise known as a Handwriting Analysis Expert. She contacted me last year about analyzing a handwritten note I'd posted on my blog. That lead to me sending her some “exemplars”-samples of handwriting for her to use to practice her craft. She likes to keep fresh and seeing the samples is also fun for her. I sent her mine, Sam's, some friends and family. She told me things that surprised me and shocked me. She was even able to tell me one person I know is “closeted” gay. When I talked to that person, that person indicated she was correct! I had NO idea! And no, I didn't care if the person was gay or not. Sheesh! It was that I had NO idea and the person's handwriting said it all! That was what was so interesting!

To think that the loops and shapes of our letters tell a story all their own is fascinating. With that in mind, months ago, I asked this person to look at the writing samples from a post (rant) I'd written about Koko the cat, who was dumped by her owner. My email fell into her Spam folder and she just found it yesterday! She wrote up her analysis, which I'll share with you, below.

These notes were regarding THIS (1) post.

Hi, 8/14/10
My name is Koko. I was adopted by my family on March of 2008. My birthday is January 18, 2008. My family drove an hour and a half to adopt me.
I might be sick. I have been urinating and pooping in the house off and on for the last few weeks. My family doesn't have the money to bring me to the vet.
Please help me. I am a sweet, loving cat but I can be nervous around new people. I don't eat much either. My family hopes that some one here can check me out and hopefully bring me home.
This has been a very sad decision for my family and I am scared. I just need love and attention.
Please help me. My family is praying for a good person to love me and protect me.
Love, Koko

P.S. I was fixed
before my family
brought me home.
All my shots were taken when I was
a baby but I have
been an inside cat
since then and
never got anymore
shots.

P.S.S. My mom
thinks it could be
because my brother
cat & sister cat may
have scared me and
now I am afraid
to use the litter box.

The gal who wrote the first note is youngish, I would guess early 20s.

Dear Koko I Love you with all my heart. I cried for 10 mins. I really did not want you to go. I hope that the person that is taking care of her does a good job. I hope you get to come back.

I'm sorry to say that I think the writing is a kid's and here's why:

1. I don't think an adult could imitate the weird spacing, which is common for kids who don't have a lifetime of experience writing notes.
2. The "10 mins" he wrote looks childlike--I don't think an adult would know to make the numerals different sizes, like kids do.
3. The word "gob" for "job" isn't a misspelling an adult would use to throw someone off the track. Adults who misspell purposefully wouldn't use a real word in place of another word (homonyms excluded, of course)--they would just switch around a few letters.
4. The placement of the ":" between "from" and "Korey" is also an indication of someone youthful.

to who ever reads this!
I would like to say thank you!
our cat koko is now blessed in your hands and we trust you with her. I hope you will find what is wrong with her.
she is a sweet loving cat once
she gets to know you better.
I hope that you take care
of her and treat her like family.
Sincerley,

[Robin's note: this was the KICKER to me!!!]

The third note writer is definitely aware that they're behaving like an asshole, at least. No connections between letters within words, the personal pronoun "I" is demented and the "f" has a weird, duplicitous loop at the top.

What is wrong with people!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

The good news is that within a day of my post going live, Elke, one of our readers CALLED ME and offered to adopt KoKo. The next morning, our beloved Bobby, drove Koko to her new home-a few HOURS away

Elke reports that Sophie (no more KoKo), is doing very well integrating into her home. There have been NO litterbox accidents..no peeing or pooping other than in her pan. Is Sophie sick? Heck no. She's fine. Not only is she fine, she is well loved and cared for and living a wonderful life with Elke and her family. What started out as a tragedy-in-the-making, turned out to be quite a happy tail and one that I was proud to be part of.

If Sophie could write, I just know her handwriting would certainly indicate that she is happy, confident, friendly...and relieved her nightmare is over. I bet she'd dot her "i's" with smiley faces or hearts, too.

This is all so very interesting! I'd love to have a sample of my handwriting analyzed, if your friend is still looking for samples to practice with!
